PREFACE TO 1902-3 EDITION.

WE have again the pleasure of issuing an edition of this useful local annual, carefully corrected up to date.

The former lists are continued and added to, and a Local Calendar is introduced — including anniversaries, &c.,—which we hope will not only be of public benefit, but will deepen the interest in each other of the different portions of our insular county.

We had prepared a List of Rothesay Householders, arranged in Wards, in the hope of incorporating it in our publication, but the time for the appreciation of that extension has not yet arrived. The new extra list is, however, set up in type, and held in retentis. It is available for consultation privately.

All the accompanying lists (with the intention of making them complete), are, and always have been, inserted free. We rely for support in our undertaking on the liberality of advertisers and subscribers.

Our sincere acknowledgments are accorded to all who have assisted us in our work.

Parish of North Bute.

This is the northern portion of the island of Bute. Port-Bannatyne, its principal llage, is two and a-half miles from Rothesay, with which it is connected by tram-ay. Kames Castle, in the vicinity, is said to be the oldest inhabited castle in the untry, and was the ancient seat of the Bannatynes. The village was named after at family—two brothers of whom (John and Gilbert)--received a charter from King obert the Bruce, for services rendered at Bannockburn. At the last census, there ere 367 inhabited houses (1627 windowed rooms), and 192 uninhabited in the arish and 373 separtate families—793 males and 940 females—giving a total of 733. The Port-Bannatyne ward (from Pointhouse to the other end of the village nd back to Gortans and Bannatyne Mains) contained 473 males and 627 females -1100 in all; the North Bute ward, 125 males and 140 females; and the Cum-ermenoch ward, 195 males and 173 females. The total ten years ago was 1583, r an increase of 150 on the decennial period

Bonnie Scotland's Resorts.

A few Opinions of the Press on 1902 Issues.

"HIGGIE'S GUIDE TO SCOTLAND'S PLEASURE RESORTS.—This little book, has this season been enlarged and improved. It is at once a reliable travel guide, a railway time-table, and a storehouse of facts regarding matters Scottish. In its pages, further, are included verses and anecdotes reminiscent of 'Whistle Binkie' and the 'Laird of Logan,' and altogether, as the compiler claims for it, the booklet will not only be useful for the tourist and the resident in our own land, but should prove most interesting to Scotsmen abroad."—Evening Citizen, Glasgow.

"The little book is written by a perfervid Scot, and like Scotsmen, will be found all over the world. It is cheap, concise, correct, and comprehensive, a gazetteer, a directory, a railway fare-list, and a collection of humour."—Evening Times, Glasgow.

"Chatty little A.B.C. guide to the health, profit, and pleasure resorts of Scotland. The guide is most original in its style, and is commendable not merely for the excellence of its information, but for the chattiness of the comments and anecdodes with which its pages are brightened up."—Perthshire Constitutional.

"The various railway and other guides only boom the places they themselves serve, but this publication gives an unbiassed notice of all the popular resorts."—Rothesay Chronicle.

"In addition to much information about Scotland, there is a large amount of interesting reading, a perusal of which will make an hour or two pass lightly."—People's Journal, Cupar.

"At twopence it is a very cheap guide to the health and pleasure resorts of the country. There are also dearer editions."—Evening Telegraph, Dundee.

"Gives brief notes regarding the leading health resorts of Scotland."—Glasgow Herald.

Among the acknowledgments received from those public libraries in the British Isles to which copies have been sent at our own expense, one librarian (who had evidently read the "winsome little volume," and appreciated it, wrote us :—"——, 24/6/2. Many thanks for your pretty edition of 'Bonnie Scotlands' Resorts.' which I have received this morning. It would be a nice addition for every public library, and in America, if you could get somebody to help you to circulate it. ——."

So mote it be!

THE COAST.

—o—

OWING to the several Railway Companies issuing Coast Guides of their own, and circulating them gratis, our 1d monthly,

The Coast Guide,

has been meantime withdrawn. It supplied the desired information at a glance, which in the ordinary way, people interested in Buteshire have to search for in each of the Companies publications, and there consult the individual routes (ranging from Craigendoran to Ardrossan), before they could find when is "the first," "the next," or "the last"

arrival or departure to or from the Coast or the City Our Coast Guide showed the arrivals and departures just exactly as they happened at the different piers and railway stations—a great saving of time to the inquirer.

We know our handy production was appreciated, and if we receive adequate support, we will again spend our time to save the time of the public.

☞ ANOTHER GREAT SUCCESS. ☜

At the New South Wales Sheep-Breeders'
Great Show at Sydney, June, 1901,

SHEEP DIPPED WITH

LITTLE'S DIPS

Secured the only 2 Grand Champion Prizes.
14 Champion Prizes.
24 First Prizes.
21 Second Prizes.
18 Third Prizes.

Total, 79 PRIZES.

What other Proof do you want that LITTLE'S DIPS ARE THE BEST for your Sheep?

From "THE EXPRESS," CHRISTCHURCH, N. Z., 23rd January, 1902:—"Captain Hugh M'Lean, of Greenpark, secured top price at the second local wool sales, this being the third year in succession that he has topped the market at one of the season's sales. He attributes his success largely to the use of Little's Fluid Sheep Dip, and has written to the local agents to that effect."

Little's Dips (Fluid, Powder, Paste, Cake),
Sold by all Chemists and Merchants, or direct from the Manufacturers:

Morris, Little & Son, Ltd.,

BONNIE SCOTLAND'S RESORTS and PATRIOTIC HEATHER CARDS

Shouther tae shouther away they go!

BONNIE SCOTLAND'S RESORTS, Paper, 2d; Cloth, 6d; Leather, 1s.

SCOTCH HEATHER CARDS 3d, 6d, and 1s each.

These Publications can be had separately.

Cannot fail to be appreciated wherever sent.

"One of the most gratifying messages of good will that has reached us this season comes from Rothesay, Scotland, in the form of a 'Heather Christmas Card' issued by Messrs Higgie & Co., of that favourite resort. . . . . The two inside pages are surrounded with mottoes, every one of which breathes a true Scottish sentiment of good will to absent relatives or acquaintances. Along with this card Messrs Higgie & Co., send us a copy of their guide to 'Bonnie Scotland's Resorts,' a wonderful little compendium of descriptive and historical information."—New Zealand Times, Wellington.

"They're faur, faur awa', but their hearts are kind and true—
The auld hoose at hame is ever in their view:
The Bonnie Heilan heather and the hilltaps clad wi' snaw—
Their hearts are aye in Scotland though they're faur, faur awa.'"

PHONOGRAPHY
AS AN AID TO SELF-EDUCATION.

Phonography was first brought under my notice in the summer of 1855. I was then a servant at a farm a few miles from Banff. A watch and clock maker, calling at the farm one day on some business regarding his vocation, incidentally entered into conversation with me and drew my attention to Phonography, which he offered to teach me gratuitously. He gave me a small tract containing a statement of the advantages of shorthand, and recommendations from some eminent literary men in favor of Pitman's system. I read the tract, but as I considered Phonography above my reach of attainment, I made no attempt to learn it at that time. About six months afterwards a circumstance occurred which brought the subject more prominently under my notice. I had then obtained another situation and was living in a distant part of the country, where a lecture on the English language was delivered under the auspices of a Mutual Improvement Society. I was present at the delivery of this lecture, and saw a reporter for the press taking notes. Next week I found the lecture reported verbatim in a local newspaper. This circumstance very much surprised me, as the gentleman who reported the lecture was formerly a ploughman, and I had myself known him in that capacity only three years previously. Learning that it was Pitman's system of shorthand which he used, I at once obtained a copy of the "Phonographic Teacher," which I got direct from Mr Pitman, who at the same time sent me some interesting tracts, and a copy of the Phonetic Journal. Mr Pitman's alphabet of thirty-six letters for printing—a letter for every sound in the English language, was quite new to me, and this mode of spelling, giving the exact pronunciation of every word, so attracted my attention that I made it my first object of study. After a few days I was able to read the phonetic spelling with facility, but I found that my pronunciation differed from Mr Pitman's in many instances. This led me to think that he had mispronounced some of the words, but recourse to a good pronouncing dictionary convinced me that the error lay with myself.

My school education was of the most elementary kind, and I did not learn to read with anything like correctness when at school. It is impossible, owing to the inconsistency and insufficiency of the common alphabet, to learn more than a mere smattering of the principles of orthoepy during the short period of elementary education. The spelling of a word is seldom a correct guide to its pronunciation, and it takes a long time to teach rational creatures the elements of learning by the irrational current orthography. It is a true maxim that there is no "royal road to learning," yet the rough and crooked road with the romanic spelling for stepping-stones, could be rendered more pleasant and much shorter by the adoption of a truthful phonetic method of spelling ; and according to the testimony of Professor Max Müller, Dr R. G. Latham, and many other distinguished philologists, phonetic spelling could be adopted without obscuring the etymological and historical associations of the language.

I now pass to Phonography, or Phonetic Shorthand. The only object I had in view when I commenced the study of Phonography, was to acquire as much facility in writing it as would enable me to take notes of lectures and sermons. This was my highest ambition, and as such I have found it of greater utility than I anticipated. I did not at first make much progress, and after devoting a short time to the study of the rules and exercises in the "Teacher," I gave up the pursuit, in the belief that I should never be able to write shorthand with that degree of facility which would render it of any advantage to me.

After an interruption of more than six months, I made a second attempt. I went over all the rules in the "Manual," writing out all the exercises as I went along ; but not meeting with my desired success, I again gave up the study. My want of success was entirely owing to the want of day-by-day practice in writing exercises. I only turned my attention to the subject now and then, often allowing a week or more to intervene between my lessons. Such a mode of procedure is a great obstacle to advancement in any study, because the mind soon acquires a tendency to shun the matter. I strongly felt this when I neglected my exercises for a week or two. My mind became alienated from the subject, so that it required a good deal of resolution to return to the pursuit.

I had no difficulty in understanding the system, for it is so simple and natural, and its rules are so clear and explicit that it can be learned by anyone of average ability, who may have obtained only the most elementary education. But rules, however clear, are of little value without practice. This holds good in other arts as well as Phonography.

I was induced some months afterwards to give Phonography another trial. I set earnestly to work on this occasion, keeping in view the remark of Sir William Jones, that "what has been done by one man can be done by another." Half-an-hour's practice daily enabled me, after a short time, to write at the rate of forty words per minute. After having acquired the ability to write at this rate, I found the task easy, and made rapid progress.

In writing out the exercises I took down summaries of passages from some of the best English authors, or from articles in the Phonetic Journal, then wrote out the passages in full, and compared them with the originals. This mode of practice improved me in the art of composition as well as in the art of Phonography. It also tended to occupy my mind intellectually, so that I did not look upon the exercises in learning Phonography as a mere pen practice, but as an intellectual exercise also. In this way I acquired a degree of proficiency in composition which I should never have attained otherwise. Composition was a branch of education which I did not learn at school, and I am convinced that I should not, in after life, have bestowed the time and labor necessary to acquire the art, had I not learned it along with Phonography in the manner above stated; and I believe that the progress I made in composition was also an inducement to me to persevere with Phonography. Both arts go naturally hand in hand, and the student of the English language will derive great benefit from the study of Phonography, which gives a strong impulse to the study of English composition; and imparts readiness of thought and expression.

By continued day-by-day practice I acquired increased facility in writing Phonography, and in course of time was able to follow a slow speaker, but it took more than twelve months to attain this proficiency. I learned the system entirely from the instruction books, without the aid of a teacher, but though Phonography can be learned without a teacher, I would earnestly recommend every learner to place himself under a teacher when he can conveniently do so. His progress will on that account be more rapid and sure. I was thirty years of age before setting earnestly to work to learn Phonography, and there can be no doubt that it requires more practice to learn the system at that age, than at an earlier period of life.

I shall ever look upon Phonography as one of the most valuable acquisitions of my life. I know from my own experience, that the study of Phonography improves the memory, and trains the mind to habits of attention and application, guiding the wandering thoughts into proper channels. I must confess that before studying it my mind was very restive. My thoughts were continually running into bye-paths. I had acquired a good deal of general knowledge, but the want of method and the love of change were great obstacles to my improvement. I had not acquired that discipline of mind which results from a regular course of education. But such discipline was in great measure supplied to me by the study of Phonography, which aided in training my mind to habits of steady thought and continuous reasoning. Phonography is well adapted to this purpose, particularly after the student has made some progress in the art, because his course becomes easier as he passes on; and when he finds himself gradually making progress, his thoughts become allured with pleasure in the pursuit, which enables him to fix his attention on the subject. Then, when he is able to follow a speaker, Phonography serves still better as a mental discipline, because the attention must be directed to the single object in pursuit, which trains the mind to habits of watchfulness, self-control, and patient industry. During the last three years I have devoted the greater portion of my leisure hours to systematic study, and in that time I have acquired more intellectual improvement than in all the rest of my life put together. This advancement I attribute to my being able to write Phonography, and to the mental discipline I received in learning the art. Without the aid of Phonography I could not have accomplished one-half of the work; neither should I have attempted it, for the drudgery in writing longhand would have been a great obstacle in the way. This drudgery gives a reluctance to professional writers to engage in composition, as well as to mere tyros in learning. Dr Johnson no doubt felt the drudgery of writing the cogitations of his fertile mind, when he made the remark that he had always to set himself doggedly to write. Dr Gregory, in his Memoir of the life of that eminent divine, Robert Hall, very graphically describes how the operation of writing longhand acts upon an active mind while engaged in composition. Mr Hall, although one of the most distinguished writers of the English language, had a great reluctance to write; and Dr Gregory, commenting on this, says:—"There was the constant effort to restrain a mind naturally active, ardent, and rapid in all its movements, to a slow progression; nay, a farther effort, and to a mind so constituted a very irksome one, to bring the thoughts back from the ultimate issue to which they were incessantly hastening, again and again, by a comparatively sluggish course, the successive links in a long chain."

Since learning Phonography, one of my studies has been the Latin language. Here I found Phonography of great use to me in writing exercises. I have also found it of great benefit to me in writing essays, taking notes of reading, corresponding with other phonographers, etc.

I believe that if children, in the ordinary course of school education, were taught Phonography as an elementary branch of knowledge, they would find it of incalculable benefit in the higher branches of education. Besides this, the student would be in possession of a most important art, of the highest utility in almost every business or profession of life. J. P.
